

Robert Zinkham leads Venable's healthcare practice.

Having spent 25 years exclusively practicing healthcare law, Mr. Zinkham develops and organizes business relationships between hospitals and physicians, representing both large hospital systems and physician groups. He has extensive regulatory experience with federal and state government investigations of healthcare entities. He also represents significant commercial health insurers.

Rapid changes in healthcare have created challenges for health insurers, physicians, hospitals and other healthcare groups. Mr. Zinkham's considerable success in structuring original and profitable medical entities in compliance with the law provides an uncommon benefit to those new to healthcare, as well as established practitioners and facilities seeking to assure both high-quality and cost-effective care.
