Larry Ahern is a Director of the Association of Insolvency and Restructuring Advisors. He has practiced bankruptcy and commercial law since graduation from Vanderbilt University Law School and admission to the Tennessee bar in 1972 and is a Retired Partner at Burr & Forman LLP. His Nashville-based practice with William Houston Brown (Bankruptcy Judge, Western District of Tennessee, 1987-2006) now focuses on consulting with law firms and other professionals on commercial and bankruptcy law issues, expert testimony, alternative dispute resolution, writing and teaching (and kayaking, hiking and downhill skiing). He is a Rule 31 Mediator in Tennessee and holds national certification as a Business Bankruptcy Specialist by both the American Board of Certification and the Tennessee Commission on CLE and Specialization. He is a Fellow of both the American College of Bankruptcy and the American College of Mortgage Attorneys. Larry is an Adjunct Professor of Law at Vanderbilt, teaching Secured Transactions, serves on the Advisory Board of the St. John's Law School Bankruptcy LL.M. program and was Visiting Professor at Cumberland School of Law, Fall, 2002, teaching Secured Transactions and Banking. He is an Emeritus Director and former Chair of the American Board of Certification and a former Director of the American Bankruptcy Institute.
